

Bio:

Amy is an intern with Detroit Disability Power, a liaison with Sen. Stephanie Chang's office, and currently in her second-year of the MSW program at Wayne State University. Her interests include policy, community development, and leadership. Amy is the key supporter to her sibling who is an individual with an intellectual disability. She has a wealth of experience in the disability field, including direct service as a support coordinator and in state programs with Michigan's intellectual and developmental disabilities state agency. She has direct experience in policy having worked as leadership staff in Michigan's state legislator. Amy has a deep commitment to contributing to the development of inclusive communities, systems change, and quality of life for people with intellectual and developmental disabilities and their families.